- VIII. No imperfect book will be taken back, unless a note accompanies each book stating its imperfections, with the number of lot and date of the sale at which the same was purchased.
- IX. To prevent inaccuracy in the delivery, and inconvenience in the settlement of the purchases, no lot can on any account be removed during the time of sale.
- X. Upon failure of complying with the above conditions, the money required and deposited in part of payment shall be forfeited; and if any loss is sustained in the re-selling of such lots as are not cleared or paid for, all charges on such re-sale shall be made good by the defaulters at this sale.

FOREWORD

Mr. Richard Jennings's books are in nearly all cases fine copies. He has set a standard of condition which has become widely accepted and we think it not inappropriate to quote a few lines from the Preface to Mr. Michael Sadleir's Catalogue, XIX Century Fiction (dedicated to Mr. Jennings) as a tribute to his taste :—

“ Jennings's standard of condition is so high that acceptable copies of all the books he wishes to possess simply do not exist. He is inexorable in maintaining this standard ; and, in consequence, although his collection shows many gaps which in titles alone he would wish to fill, there is hardly a book in his possession which is not in a state of preservation as nearly faultless as one could hope to see.”

A number of the books were shown in Mr. John Hayward's Exhibition of English Poetry for the National Book League in 1947 and these are indicated by their numbers in the Exhibition Catalogue.

Autograph Letters and Historical Documents, Etc.

A. L. s. = autograph letter signed, one entirely in the handwriting of the signer.

L. s. = letter signed, the signature only in the handwriting of the sender.

A. D. s. } as above, reading document for letter.

Doc. s. }

11 DICKENS (Charles) Short A. L. s. to John Delane, 30 Sept., 1867 "after our conversation on Saturday . . . I have decided to go and have telegraphed to America to that effect today"; Hardy (Thomas) A. L. s., dated Sept. 12, 1874, referring to a MS. of a short story called "'Destiny and a Blue Cloak' which I have written for the New York Times"; and other Letters by Prince Louis Philippe, Charles Reade, Henry Irving (3), Disraeli and others from politicians and actors, about 30 in all

12 [DONNE (John)] CONTEMPORARY TRANSCRIPTS OF DONNE'S POEMS, in the hand of John Cave, written on 160 pp., paper, at the other end of the volume there is a similar transcript of Richard Corbett's poems, on 48 pp., contemporary calf, gilt diamond ornament on sides, binding neatly repaired 4to circa 1620

** Signatures of John Cave, John Nedham, Elizabeth Parker, T. R. O'Flaherty, C. Elkin Matthews and Richard Jennings on flyleaves. Loosely inserted is an A. L. s. from Robert Corbett to his mother from Oxford.

The manuscript begins with a poem by Cave "Upon Mr. Donn's Satires", written, according to Sir Herbert Grierson, while Donne was still alive. In his edition of Donne's Poems, Oxford, 1912, Grierson refers to this manuscript as the John Cave MS.

He describes it as a small collection of Donne's poems in the possession of Mr. Elkin Matthews. It was formerly in Mr. T. R. O'Flaherty's possession. The manuscript is divided into three parts, the first containing the five Satyres, the Litany, the Storme and Calme; the second consists of Elegies and Epigrammes; and the third of Miscellanea, Poems, Elegies, Sonnets by the same Author. Nearly all the poems end with the words "Finis Jo. Donne". Discussing its contents, Grierson compares it with the Westmoreland MS. but it "abounds in errors and emendations". It contains one or two poems which were published in the 1650 edition which he found in only one other manuscript, and to these the Cave MS. supplies emendations. It is the only manuscript containing the elegy "The heavens rejoice in motion" which the younger Donne added to the edition of 1650. Grierson considers that though it is not a very correct manuscript, it is an interesting one, with very few spurious poems. He refers to "what seems to be practically a duplicate of this manuscript in the Dyce Collection at the South Kensington Museum" which belonged originally to a certain Johannes Nedlam (? Nedham) of Lincoln College.

The importance of these transcripts of Donne's poems is well known. Writing of them, Grierson says:—

"Had Donne undertaken the publication of his own poems, such of these manuscript collections as have been preserved—none of which are autograph, and few or none of which have a now traceable history—would have little importance for a modern editor. But Donne's poems were not published in this way, and the manuscripts cannot be ignored. They must have for Donne's editor at least the same interest and importance as the Quarto's have for the editor of Shakespeare."

17 SIDDONS (Sarah) Seven A. Ls. s. to Miss Coates. An interesting series written between 1795 and 1800

** The first, undated but probably 1795, begins:—

"How shall I thank you for all those kind attentions which I am sure flow from the goodness of your heart, and therefore are more precious than all the dull ceremonies of good breeding—I have had enough of that vapid stuff, . . . I must now go and dress for Mrs. Beverly." (The Gamester.)

The second letter, dated June 16th, 1795, from Newcastle, ends with the postscript:—

"I fancy there is little danger of any one suffering much from the power of my charms at present 'tis rather too late—I own 'tis not unpleasant however, to be still well-looking, 5th of next July alas! I am 40 years old. O Time, Time!"

A 3 pp. letter, dated Aug. 16th, 1799, from Pontefract, refers to her son Henry:—

"he only wants to get rid of his unjustifiable portion of diffidence, and to see and hear good things, to make him a fine Actor."

A 3 pp. letter, dated from London, Nov. 26 '99 (hole in blank margin of one leaf)—

"I returned to Town only last Wednesday have played twice since that time to Audiences whose numbers were equal to their apparent gratification . . . I am just returned from playing Jane Shore and this is the first moment I have been able to call my own . . . Mr. Siddons has arranged his affair with Sheridan more to his own satisfaction than to mine."

A letter from Belfast, dated Oct. 2, 1802, complains of fatigue: "the springs of my poor machine have been overstrain'd" and she plans to go to Harrogate "to try the effect of the water".

A. L. s. from Edinburgh, postmarked March 11, 1808, to Mrs. Sterling, referring apparently to Miss Coates who appears to be gravely ill.

18 SIDDONS (S.) Four A. L. s. to her nephew, Horace Twiss. One letter, undated and rather worn refers to a prosecution Twiss appears to have been contemplating and which Mrs. Siddons advises him against :—
